The Greenshoro College Creed

WE BELIEVE in being rather than in seeming; in the devotion to high ideals; in daring to do our duty as we understand it.

We believe in having an attentive eye, a listening ear, a busy brain, in keeping the mind clear and bright, filling it with wholesome thoughts of life; in losing ourselves in useful industry.

We believe in being worthy at all times: in having grim energy and resolute courage for the conquest of fear: in gaining confidence in our ability.

We believe in service, in doing kind deeds, thinking kind thoughts, in being strong, gentle, pure and good: steady, loyal, and enduring.

We believe in reverence for truth: humility: in great aspirations and high ambitions: in toiling ever upward.

We believe in cultivating the bright virtue of patriotism and the holy passion for friendship.

We believe in studying hard, thinking quietly, speaking gently; acting frankly; in listening to the winds, the trees, the stars, and the birds: to babes and sages with open hearts: we believe in being glad, in loving all, in hating none, in doing all bravely, bearing all cheerfully, awaiting all occasions, hurrying never.

We believe in striving to gain sound knowledge, not content to simply know, but determined to use knowledge for the highest purpose.

We believe in man and woman, in God's unending love, and in the future.

THE POST FORD

ROBERT F. NICHOLS

O you who so sincerely loved the class of nineteen-thirty when we were sophomores, we, the class of nineteen-thirty, now seniors, set aside this page in our book for you, as we have and always will reserve a place in our memories and hearts for the teacher whom we so sincerely love.

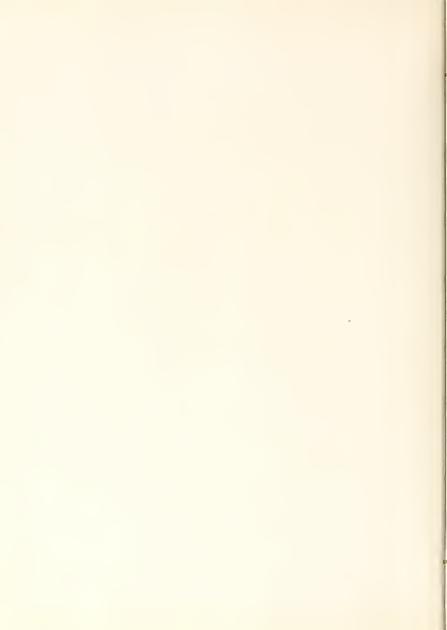

On the day you left, you said to us. "We have played along the shore of art and literature for a year now. I hope you have picked up a few shells to keep—but remember that the vast ocean of Truth lies before you and now you are ready to set sail." We have many shells for remembrance, and now that we are in reality ready to sail forth on the voyage of Life, we hold your memory and instruction as a guiding star—as a hand which points us onward and upward to the realization of our ideals.

ARTHUR HIBBETS

Mascot of Senior Class

A very popular and important member of the Senior class is its mascot, Arthur Hibbets. Arthur is often seen on the campus, in the dining room, and in the office with Misses Letha and Mary Brock. Sometimes he is also seen at orchestra rehearsal, where he plays his "horn and drum" and watches very closely his daddy's baton.

Arthur is jolly, good-natured, always ready to smile and to talk to the "college girls." The Seniors feel fortunate in having such a fine little fellow for their mascot and are wishing for him a long life with much success and happiness and are hoping he will always remember the class of '30.

JUDITH IRENE ALBERT, A.B. SALEM. VA.

Irving Literary Society: Greenbrier College (1), School of Spoken English and Dramatic Art (2, 3); Dramatic Club (2, 3, 4); Raphael Art Club (2, 3, 4); President Raphael Art Club (3); Botany Club (2, 3); Spanish Club (3); Art Editor Ectio (3); Ectio Staff (4); Zoology Club (3, 4); House President Hudson Ifall (3); Executive Council (3); Student Council (3, 4), Fire Licutenaut (4); International Relations Club (4); Register Inspector (4); College Marshal (4)

"Judy" is endowed with the "spark of eternal fire" possessed only by artists, and has the power to make beautiful everything around her

Judith has good judgment and a cultured and refined manner with an element of reserve which goes for the making of a perfect gentlewoman. Fine sensibilities, and a keen insight make her far above the average in scholastic ability, yet her common sense balances this and makes her the sort of a girl anyone would be proud to have as a friend. Those who know her best know how jolly she can be on occasion, and we know that some day a certain someone is going to be just as glad to call her his as we, the class of '30, are to call her ours.

INMAN, S. C.

Irving Laterary Society; Young-Barris College (1, 2); Zoology Club (3); Greensboro College Orchestra (3, 4); Life Service Band (3); Hikers Club (3).

The "Ideal Girl," is the only way one could justify Mary Jane by description. There are so many adjectives that could be applied in painting a picture of her! First, she is gifted with that characteristic so greatly in demand—personality. She is "good looking." a ready sympathizer, a good listener, sincere in her work, and at the same time has all the fun that one could possibly want. As a matter of fact, if Buddy Roggers really expects to find his "Draam Girl," as he has listed her qualifications, he'd step right into luck if he should come on our campus and chance to see this particular person. "Jane Unknown" she is to him.—however all of us at G. C. know her—and—"To know her is to love her."

Have boning this wherever her (tuture leads her she!!! If old as many friends we have lawned.

Here's hoping that wherever her future leads her, she'll find as many friends as she's leaving back here. If she does, she'll surely have the kind of luck we're wishing for her, and will lead the happy life which she deserves.

I ovable and sweet—yes—but that isn't all just a moment. Here's a girl worth knowing just as enthusiastic in work as in play. True blue sincere, loyal—but how could words do ustice to her charming personality, wit, and lovely wave? To meet her is to wish to be counted among her friends. Love her? Yes—we all do. Wait—one would not attempt to describe Virginia without saying she is very "cute. To those that know her, no other word could do justice to her personality.

Multiply all those things that go to make a good sport and the result is Virginia. She never turns traitor on field day, and is dependable in anything she attempts

Here's wishing luck to her, no matter what field of endeavor she may enter and we are sure that success will attend her efforts.

Will you have a lullaby or an opera number? It really makes no particular difference should be considered to though you should call for an opera selection and she sang a lullaby, when she is finished you are fully convinced it was a lullaby that you wanted anyway.

Louise chose another school for her first two years of college but when she came to Greensboro College she found a place to fill and she has faithfully and efficiently filled it. There are many here that will remember Louise as a jolly good friend, for frendliness is one of her strong characteristics. At the same time she has remained loyal to her old friends of four years ago at Davenport.

Here's to you, Louise! Success and happiness will follow you wherever you go for you're the kind that makes a place for those things to live, as well as a place in your heart for all that is pure and noble.

Endowed with the choicest of life's gifts—sincerity, frankness, and sweetness, we shall always remember Elsie as one of the most lovable members of our class.

Mother Nature chose to endow her with quick intellect as a tool for learning—"The only gem that does not decay is knowledge" is an adage which fits Elsie perfectly. She is a regular shark when it comes to math and the fact that she has been an honor student every year proves her ablity in other fields.

Those of us who know her intimately know that she always takes her own time about everything, however, her own time must be the best time for she gets there just the same.

If you want anything done she is there to help, if you are looking for a good time she is always ready to join. What more could one ask? With her keen intellect and accommodating manner she is bound to succeed in whatever she undertakes.

What she was yesterday—she is today—and will be tomorrow. Attention folks! When Eleanor passes everyone gives a second glance, for with all her attractiveness she has the supreme gift of Clara Bow's "It." Her friendliness toward everybody, sincerity in everything and splendid character make Eleanor one of the most popular and best loved members of our class. She will always be loval, gentle and cultured. Her daintiness and congenial nature go to make up her unique personality. To know her is to admire her. Eleanor's disposition is to be envied. She finds some good in everything and in everyone. We have never seen her downhearted. It is her policy to be happy, and we consider that it has been a great pleasure to have this cheefful, friendly little person in the class of "30. There is a thing about her that brings a smile to welcome her, a sigh when she departs, and that little thing about her has endeared her to our hearts.

"Gentlemen prefer blonds"—that is, we know of at least one who does. Perhaps that explains Pris' deep interest in Home Economics, and it might also have something to do with the "Frat" pin. We don't blame this certain gentleman but we do envy him. Could he have anything to do with her telephone calls?

anything to do with net telephone caus?

Capable, reliable, energetic and friendly, with wit thrown in, combine to make her a combination of seriousness and fun—that's "Pris."

Iving Literary Society, Davenport College (1); Spanish Club (2, 3), Zoology Club (3); Hikers' Club (2); Botany Club (2); N. C. C. W. Summer School 1926; International Relations Club (4),

Virginia is the kind of girl who can give her biographer much trouble since it is impossible, in the allotted space, to even sketch completely her character. As a friend and companion it would be hard to find a better one. She is sparkling, vivacious, and always ready for a good time. She entered G. C. het sophomore year and we regret that she wasn't with use the whole four years. With her high degree of intelligence and her excellent personality, we can predict nor years. With her high degree of intelligence and her excellent personality, we can predict now and yet vivacious and gay, spreading joy with her laugh, are only a few things we know about Virginia. Ever a friend, if once a friend, she has found a place in the hearts of all of us. We can imagine her in the future, doing anything from studying in "Gay Parce" to receiving the love of her "Prince Charming." And we wish for her, happiness always, for if ever anyone deserves ite—Virginia does.

"Tve got a last-go trade for you, can you trade?" And generally we can, for who doesn't often hear someone say. "I like Ruth. She says the cutest things I've ever heard." Because of this wit Ruth has become an outstanding figure on the campus. More than once some gitl—blue, homesick or out-of-sorts, has gone to Ruth's room with. "Ruth, sing me some of those campmeting songs." Then she, in a voice not at all bad, peals forth on "My Lord Delivered Daniel," accompanied by the gestures and voice of a true campmeting "singing leader."

Daniel, accompanied by the gestures and voice of a true campinenting singing reader.

But Ruth is not at all one-sided because of her outstanding wit, and, in spite of the fact that she dotes on giving people the impression that she is quite dumb, she has plenty of sense on plenty of subjects.

If northing happens to hinder her with this unique personality we shall all be disappointed if she doesn't bring honor to our class. So, taking all this into consideration, as one man we rise and shout. "Vive la Rutho."

It's funny how hard it is to find just the right things to say about Anne. She has so many admitable traits and we wonder just how the gods could have found so many to combine. Lovable, charming, attractive, loyal, capable, talented—well, she is all of these plus a winning personality. A better girl could not have been chosen from the seniors for their leader. She is carefree enough not to let anything worry her and yet she understands her responsibility.

One could search for miles and miles and never find a better sport than Anne. She will try almost anything once, even to singing over the radio. No one can be blue with Anne around! With her outlook on life she is sure to come out on top.

There is nothing on earth that a normal girl dreads so much as a blond. Frances has a whiz to her swift arrow that entutes her to a place in the tournament. Here s hoping she wins. Beautiful eves of darkest, deepest blue, under straight, black brows that give them a somewhat appealing look. She has all the sterling qualities that one could possibly desire, a genial disposition that we all envy, and varied abilities that we all admire. Frances is a conscientious worker and a diligent student. She is clever, cynical, and writty with a philosophical trend that will entertain men and women alik——the old as well as the young. We'd surely like to know where she gets all this personality. A little mischievous? Yes—but she can be serious. I'm telling you Frances knocks them for a goal. What difference does it make? Since the form is a voyage of discovery. Her pep, high ideals, and aimable air are all contributed to her youth—youth—and the gladness of youth—exists for Frances in every phase of her life.

Glancing back over our college days our class could not find a truer or a sincerer friend than we have in "Lib." And blessed are those upon whom she bestows her friendship. She is indeed very capable and when a task is given to her to accomplish one can rest assured that it will be done to the best of her ability and to the satisfaction of everyone. Allow me to introduce you to Beck—one of our finest and sweetest, and one that the class of '30 will always be proud to claim. She is conscientious in her work and in her play, and always ready to help a friend. Beck is a good sport and takes a prominent part in athletics on the campus. If you doubt this, just watch her play basketball. Many nice things could be said about Beck, but this phrase alone expresses the thought of everyone. "She opened her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue was the law of kindness." If you are looking for a hard worker and a girl that is true blue, here she is: Surely she could never be accused of lack of enthusnasm and vivacity in regard not only to work and play but also in a certain young man. Her delight in hearing from Van is plainly seen in her beaming eyes. We wish for you the best of everything through life.

"Pris" is rather a puzzle to the majority of us who wander about in a life of stern realities. To us the fairy-land with all its romanic glamour has faded and bene transformed into a life of harsh materialism. Frances is yet the child of ideals and to her the life about her is pairied in colors of "rose and gold." Soon there will come the time when the delightfully feminine, charmingly, indifferent, and very petite girl we know today has become the woman of sensible, practical, yet charming personality. Perhaps Frances isn't the ambitious scheming student ever grasping for the key of knowledge, but she is always alert for that necessary quality for which every woman strives: attractiveness both in personality and appearance and we feel that she has surely been successful in the attraumment of that goal.

Margaret, a girl of many abilities, sometimes a friend, sometimes a student, often a pleasure chaere, always a lover of books. She is our studentime, even on rainy days and blue Mondays she never fails to chase our blues away with her ever-ready original expressions. When you are down-hearted or sad, just go to Margaret. Sleeping is her chief amusement and procrastination her weakness—but what does that matter when her ability ranges all the way from scientific facts of interest to discussing most everything in present day literature? For Margaret reads the daily papers, periuses the best magazines and absorbs the material of numberless books. Added to her wisdom she has a winning disposition—a personality all her own which wins your heart. Her strong convictions, mischievous eyes, sincere spirit, frankness of manner, surprising ability will win for her a place in the world. She is a girl always hopeful and considerate—glad of life because it gives one a chance to love, work, and plav.

Margaret is well-known for her amiable and pleasant disposition. She's a great friend to all, because if it's fun you're up to, she's with you, if you're down and out, she's, the one to whom we go. She is attractive, sincere and always a real honest-to-goodness girl. By her outspoken nature and simplicity of manner, Margaret has won a host of friends. She has proved herself to be a good sport and a thoroughly capable student. We wish her much success as a school "marm". However, we fear she will not teach long, because . . . , oh well, can't you guess? Anyway, we predict for this little girl a great future.

Joyce, a student, a leader, a lover, a friend—proof that a girl can be both attractive and capable. That she is congenial with everyone, happy and sympathetic in any situation, is evidenced by the numerous admirers her personality and charm of manner draw. By her diligent, sincere, and interested efforts she has proved a most valuable asset to the Y. W. C. A. An adequate appreciation of "Joe" is impossible for one to write, for in her are combined so many sterling qualities and there is nothing in which she does not excel. In her are found all things fair and all things worth white—ability, fairness, squareness, good common sense, fun, pep—all combined. She is a diligent worker—always eager to do her best—a sincere friend, a congenial and delightful companion. "Joe" is one of our outstanding music students and we feel sure she will succeed in this field. In short "Joe" is the kind of a girl of which we wish there were more. You can search the world over, but you will never find another like Venice. She is trueblue and we count it a privilege to have her as one of our friends. A sweeter girl cannot be found, and she is a Iriend worth having. Venice is a little girl, but, as you've often heard, the most valuable articles are wrapped in small packages

Quiet, modest, and unassuming most nearly describe this little girl. She never sells for her real value until after she is known. She is never too serious to laugh and yet never too laughing to be serious. If you once gain her friendship, you have a friend that is not found in many, for when she loves, she loves with her whole heart, and is willing to make any necessary sacrifice for those whom she loves.

In perfect harmony with life's best gifts, she is attractive, sincere, and dependable. To play with, to cry with, to love—always a true-blue, honest to-goodness friend—that's Venice!

A real student is quite an oddity these days; but a real student plus a personality is nothing less than a freak of a college campus. But every senior who knows "Whit" thinks he is quite the best sport. most human, and lovable of the college grils. "A's" and "A-pluses" are her specialty, but just what we call her love of "mystery picture shows" we don't know. At any rate. "Whit' finds time to "take in" the movies and do her work exceedingly well. College students might do well to learn her lesson of combining so successfully work and play. A vivacious, peppy, fun-loving girl, never toigetting that the first purpose of her student life is doing well her academic work, yet ever alert to the fact that recreation and amusement have the proper places in her schedule. One could not fail to be attracted by her deep set, gold-flecked brown eyes that sparkle with her smile which is so brilliant that it comes like a burst of sunshine. She leads an optimistic life that is spiced with love, novelty, flitation, and imagination. Animation, intellect, charm, and loyalty go to make up her femininity. Doris is one of the most popular and fascinating girls in our class, with a glowing personality that combines both seriousness and fur. When Doris is around there is always happiness. She is a girl of good judgment, sound opinion, and intellect—a girl who exists only in novels, and in man's imagination. She is capable of a love that is composed of maternal tenderness, child-like inconsistency, crituring jealousy, and sublime unselfishness—and I wonder who will be the lucky man to comprehend a mixture like this.

Speaking of ability of good hard common sense, of comradeship, of fun and foolishness—well, this is Hovis. Because of her personality, her unselfishness and sneerity, she has a great influence over her fellow comrades and she has proved a friend true and lasting. She loves and is indeed loved by all. Whatever she does or whomever she meets, be it singing or talking to Charlie, we know the job will be a success. Then, too. Hovis belongs to the type that is just naturally original. By her original wit and humor she breaks the monotony of the dullest days on the campus. Her fun and mischief go a long way in making us gay and happy. The cuteness of her face, the charm and gentleness of her character have won for her many admirers. To see her returning from a stroll down the street with a mischievous smile on her face means, without doubt, another boy has lost his heart to her. There are so many words which are essential in characterizing Ollie that it is hard to know which to choose. Dependable, straightforward, resourceful, intelligent, sincere, are some of them. There are few girls in whose nature is combined, seriousness with a lively appreciation of trelf. I here are less girs in whose factors continued schoolsness with a fively appreciation of real fun, but Ollie is one of those few. She is friendly, but more than that she is a real friend—one who can be relied on a fall times. She is always ready with sound advice when it is asked for, but she has that rare quality of knowing when to speak and when to keep silent.

Ollie stands in with the profs to the extent of honor grades, but nobody would accuse her of being a bookworm. She has the knack of learning without having to dig.

In short, Ollie is a hundred per cent fine girl—one anybody would be proud to know.

An ounce of seriousness, a grain of humor, enter into the make-up of a girl who is sincere, big-hearted, and lovable. The interest which Doris has in all of those activities which surround her is sufficient to prove her capabilities. In the scholistic realm she has exhibited a keen intellect and a noble character. Her consideration of those with whom she comes in contact shows her a loyal and steadfast frend.

In her nature there is an element of reserve which is limited only to a few, and it is this tendency which has gained for her admiration and respect. Her ability and efficiency in those things which she attempts has shown her to be dependable and trustworthy.

It is not surprising that Doris gets a rush through the mail, for her pharmaceutical relationships, and her aptitude in writing letters ment this popularity, which she receives. When she is not engaged in this activity. Doris can be found buried in the depths of some novel or "Screen Magazine."

A strong will power that will always enable her to pull herself out of trying circumstances. Georgia has a big heart and a congenial nature,—the result being a host of friends. She never misses my form of social life, and were it not for her presence. I dare say, such would be a "flop." Vocationally, she has particular liking for music and romance language. We predict for Georgia a very happy and successful future. For what else could life hold in store for a girl with such a bright disposition and winning ways? To her the world is sunny and full of joy, but it is because she has made it so. Scattering happiness is an art which she has perfected, and happiness must indeed be a perfume which one cannot give to others without getting a few drops herself, for Georgia is happiness personified.

Half serious, half gay: sometimes interestingly discussing Shakespeare; then again starting out for that weekly date; or returning from one of her numerous jaunts to town—or a dozen other things. Though rather elastive, not that she is incapable of being understood, but there are times when she does the unexpected and unlooked for she has a way of winning friends. THE ISSUE COME

Class Prophecy

NE afternoon in the spring of 1945, a friend and I were in Washington at the time the cherry trees were in blossom along the Potomac. In the grass were fallen petals, and the profusion of delicate pink blooms on the trees was reflected in the still blue of the winding river. This charming picture impressed us very much, as we were both deeply interested in art—especially the pictures nature paints. While revelling in the beauty of this scene, we suggested visiting the Corcoran Art Gallery, as there had recently been added to the old treasures numerous pictures by modern painters. Accordingly, the next afternoon found us entering the treasure house of America's art, and we immediately sought out the new pictures.

Imagine our surprise when our eyes met a picture painted by one of our classmates at G. C.! It seemed so long since we had all been together there in 1930—fifteen years! Where was each member of our class? What was she doing? Recalling to mind the good times we had had while in college seemed to make the picture before us more vivid. It was a portrait of a lovely lady in a dinner gown—we recognized her as a leader of society in our nation's capital, and none other than Mary Agnes Williams, painted by Gertrude Clay!

The next was also of an old schoolmate! We began to wonder how many of them we should see! A piece of sculpture unveiled after the Olympic games proved to be the figure of Mildred Cross, manager of the Olympics, congratulating Rebecca Currie, a successful athlete. This certainly followed up their records at G. C.

We stepped on a few feet farther and saw Congress in session. Presiding was none other than Margaret Towe, Speaker of the House. The floor was occupied by two ladies who seemed to be engaged in a heated debate. Mary Leckie Read, the representative from Virginia, was arguing for a bill for the appropriation of two million dollars for the relief of retired ditch diggers, and Elizabeth Cross, of North Carolina, was leading the opposition.

Hanging by the scene of Congress was a picture of the first woman President of the United States, Nellie McKeel, holding a cabinet meeting—the first authorized picture of the administration. At her right was Janie Weaver, Secretary of State, still planning things, and the Secretary of the Treasury, Frances Wilkins, was, we felt sure, admirably fitted for her position after handling so much money at G. C. The country was in a wild state of enthusiasm over its women officials, and the success of the campaign was largely due to Mary Leila Honiker, who was still "politicing."

Were all the pictures to be of our classmates at G. C.? We became more and more astonished as we glanced around us and recognized in each one familiar faces. Our excitement reached a high pitch—we could hardly see them fast enough.

Two successful figures greeted our eyes as we saw a sketch of a chemical laboratory where Dot Robbins and Mary Cooper Hooker were working. We had read recently of their success in isolating the germ of indigestion, and this had placed them in the foremost rank of America's chemists. As we thought of science we spoke of Lavinia Veal, biologist, who was debating whether to take her Ph.D. in her own or her husband's name.

THE ICOC SCHOOL

The peaceful scene which came next was something of a shock to us. for in a cozy little room sat Frances Cox with a cat, both of them watching a kettle which was singing cheerily on the hearth. The picture was so natural it almost seemed as if she herself were sitting there.

"Florine Corbell, producer of plays light and fantastic," was the name of the next picture. It showed our old friend Florine in conference with Lazelle Mitchell foremost dramatist, evidently discussing some new play.

So many of the pictures had been calm scenes that the next attracted our attention immediately. It was court in session. I recognized four faces of school friends. The judge was none other than Beatrice Rimel, and very stern and vindictive she looked. Irene Nance, lawyer, was pleading the case of Nona Herring, who had been named the corespondent in a breach of promise suit. The plaintiff, Venice Gaddy, was on the stand. The tense atmosphere of the trial was ably portrayed by the artist.

The next scene was a mud hut with a grass roof. In the background a tropical sun was blazing over a dense jungle. Before the but was a lady, surrounded by a group of little African children gazing at her with intent faces. The lady was Katheryn McCall, missionary, and near her was Louise Atwell, who carried the natives the message of salvation with her evangelistic songs.

The next scene was in the same class. Elsie Beaman, Mary Gilbert Mc-Kenzie and Elizabeth Hunt were social service workers in the slums of one of our big cities. This picture of them was taken at the settlement house, which was used as headquarters for the welfare department.

Here was a picture labelled the North Carolina S. P. C. A. What did that mean? There was Doris Rogers, presiding, and Margaret Elliott and Margaret Farrar with an intent look on their faces. Oh! The Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals! And these were the state officers!

A spic and span office was the next picture. It had over the desk. "Albert and Flippin. Decorator and Demonstrator." Judith was designing model homes and Joyce was executing them. They both were well-fitted for this occupation, for their own homes were models.

The scene shifted to Greensboro, and a landscape in water color was a terrace with little tables under colorful canopies. The gay dresses of the ladies and the soft green grass on the lawn made a most charming picture. Mrs. Taylor (Maxine Holmes) and Mrs. Wyrick (Prestine Blakeney) were joint hostesses at tea.

Another Greensboro scene greeted our astonished gaze. It was an airplane view of the new Greensboro University, taken by Virginia Bond, famous aviatrix. The old institution had grown so much in fifteen years we hardly recognized it. There was the cupola, though, the same as ever, and Kat Leggett was up there setting up astronomical apparatus. Under the picture were the names of the officers and heads of departments: Mary Kellah Ouzts, dean: Adelaide Turnage, professor of journalism: Ruth Burrus, assistant to Dr. Webb, head of the department of English; Louise Moss, professor of Latin: Tennille Williams, professor of poetry, and Josephine Frutchey, head of the piano normal department.

A pencil portrait of Anne Catchings, socialist and strike leader, was a perfect likeness. She was still lovely and looked even more influential than in her school days.

A group of well dressed, fashionable women met our view. Mannequins for an exclusive Parisian shop they were, and among the group we recognized Frances Dorsette and Doris Hardee.

Catherine Wallace, director of the Juilliard Music Foundation and Catherine Moore, famous pianist, were posing together for the next picture. They both looked their part, with their long curling locks of hair.

Eleanor Best and Whit Gillam had fulfilled their ambition to be great mathematicians. They were in a session of the American Mathematical Association, and were learnedly expounding their theory of irrelevance, which they asserted would displace the illogical theory of relativity, held by Einstein

The interior of a recording factory revealed Hovis Hipps about to make a yodelling record. She had acquired great fame after the waning popularity of Jimmie Rogers and Riley Puckett.

Helen Evans, editor, and Pansy Rutherford, novelist, had both developed unusual theories of writing. Helen believed that criticism was deadly and concentrated all her efforts on counteracting the effect of H. L. Mencken's ideas in the South. Pansy was especially interested in the sociological aspects of the law, and wrote chiefly of crime and punishment.

Virginia Hord, costumer, was designing gowns for the popular movie star, Georgia Davis. The picture before us was one of Miss Davis in a stunning dinner gown with wrap of ermine.

Was that all? Breathless we gazed around us as if we had been around the world and seen everything and everybody in that short time. No, here were two more. The ward of a big hospital was the next scene and Frances Koonce and Mary Jane Andrews were nurses. The patient, a handsome young man, appeared very much in love—but with which one? Dr. Oflie Nichols, standing over the bed, seemed to take in the situation at a glance, and knew that the young man was only lovesick and did not need surgical attention.

And now the last—a dancing studio, run by Virginia Applewhite and Georgia Sherrill. They guaranteed to teach everyone to dance, no matter what their age or aptitude.

We glanced around and saw that the setting sun was streaking the corridors of the gallery with crimson. Just then an attendant came up and told us it was time for visitors to leave.

As we walked arm in arm down the broad steps, we gazed at the wonder of the sunset. Pictures painted by nature's fingers and those painted by human hand were strongly contrasted in our minds. Those we had just seen were of compelling interest to us, for we loved our friends and enjoyed seeing them again, but as the glory of the sunset stole over our souls, and as we comprehended its grandeur, we realized that no matter how long pictures on a canvas would endure, nature, the greatest painter, made pictures which were everlastinggiving joy and inspiration through countless ages.

The Honor Society

The Honor Society—the distant dream of every Freshman, the star toward which the Sophomores struggle, the reward for the lortunate Juniors, and the pride of many Seniors—its the Phi Beta Kappa of Greensboro College. It is composed of Juniors and Seniors only: its membership varies from year to year, according to the number of students with sufficiently high academic standing. At present the society is interested in becoming connected with a national organization and steep have been taken toward the movement.

Der Deutscher Verein

To be studying or to have studied the German language is the requirement for membership in Der Deutscher Verein, which is composed mostly of students in the department; however, "once a member, always a member." Under the able leadership of Dr Lahser a number of most interesting meetings have been held this year. These meetings are held monthly and consist, besides the business section, of a program made up of music, poems, stories, and lectures relating to Germany, which is followed by a short social period.

Spanish Club

The purpose of the Spanish Club is to create and maintain a lively interest in the language. literature, and customs of Spain and Spanish-America. Sociability is stimulated, too, sometimes by the solution of Spanish riddles and cross-word puzzles. Pronunciation is improved by singing the club song. Christmas carols, and other Spanish songs.

Sometimes a play is staged, usually a short comedy, which is always received enthusiastically. are also studied

Zoology Club

The Zoology Club is one of the largest and most interesting of all the clubs. The membership is limited to the members in the Department of Zoology. The club is wide-awake and active in the dissovery of facts relating to matters of vital importance. At each regular monthly meeting some outside speaker, usually one of the city's physicians and specialists, is invited to address the club upon some subject of current interest. The year's activities usually culminate with an annual picnic.

Botany Club

The pride of the department—the Botany Club. A finer organization cannot be found on the campus. All the advanced students in the department. Freshmen with required academic standing, and others who have proved themselves sufficiently interested, compose the club's membership. The club meets monthly and at each of these meetings some branch of botany is discussed by an outside person, an authority in that particular branch. During the past year the club has sponsored and financed a landscape gardening project—the planting of shrubbery around Hudson Hall.

International Relations Club

This is the youngest club on the campus, initiated by the History Department with the aid of the Carnegie Foundation. Its membership is made up of those girls who are interested in keeping up with international affairs and problems, and who are willing to read daily some newspaper or periodical. It holds bi-monthly meetings at which time an authority on international questions is secured as a speaker. The outstanding event of the year was the address on "Present Machinery for Preventing War." by Sir Herbert Ames.

Experimenters' Club

The Experimenters' Club constitutes a group of advanced students in the Department of Chemistry and Physics interested in scientific research and experiment. From time to time experiments are performed in the laboratory and occasionally a research problem is conducted. Its members are particularly interested in the activities of the general scientific world and a close check is kept on current events of that nature. At each monthly meeting a review is given of the leading scientific periodicals.

Home Economics Club

The Home Economics Club is an organization which includes every student in the department. The aim of its program is to arouse interest in the varied fields open to Home Economics students. When an opportunity is presented, valuable lectures and demonstrations are attended by the club. Outstanding among the projects which are carried out is the selection of furnishings for the dining room. Several articles are chosen each year to be donated to the department.

Life Service Band

The Life Service Band is a band of girls who are interested in humanity and in serving humanity either with part time or whole time service. Membership is unlimited. Student programs are usually presented at the weekly Sunday night meetings, but an occasional speaker is brought in. It sponsors morning watch, which is held each morning immediately after breakfast. It functions not alone for the good of its members, but for the good of unfortunate ones at holiday seasons.

Raphael Art Club

On our campus the Art Department is continuously developing and broadening in its scope; there is an organization whose membership consists of the art students possessing a keen interest in the fine arts. The Raphael Art Club was organized with Miss Landrum as sponsor during the fall of 1927, and it was named for Raphael, the Italian artist, whose masterpieces are studied. The art club has as its purpose the creation of an appreciation for art and culture in our college.

Day Students

The Day Students' Association, which is composed of the non-resident students of the college, is one of the newest formed, yet has been one of the most active organizations on the campus during the past year. The purpose of the association is to work in correlation with the Students' Association to the end that there will be closer fellowship and association among the two organizations. The day students held one of the outstanding social events of the year when they received at a musicale and tea for the faculty and officers of the student organizations

Fire Department

The loud clanging of a bell breaks the deep silence of the night. The scufflle and scramble of some, and the unconscious groping of others for bathrobes and wet towels, is accompanied by excited chatter or sleepy yawns. Turning on lights and pulling down windows, the girls file out to the instructions of the trusty lieutenants, who are carrying out the orders of their chief. After answering roll call, the time is negligible before pajamas are nestling against warm sheets again and pillows are hearing confidential snores.

The College Message

The College Message is the college magazine which is published once a month by the Irving and the Emerson societies. Hence, it is a literary magazine containing stories, plays, poems, book reviews, articles on college problems and a special humor section. Its purpose is to give the college group an interesting bit of reading material and to discover the ability of various girls in literary work by endeavoring to awaken dormant capabilities. It is always open to and welcomes any contributions made by the students.

Its mailing list includes a large number of alumnae and outside colleges as well as students. The college is enriched and benefited by each issue of its Message.

The Collegian

The Collegian is the college newspaper edited twice a month by a very capable staff. It has the distinction of belonging to the North Carolina Press Association, and twice a year delegates attend its meetings, coming into contact with other editors and their problems, and forming valuable associations.

The paper is thoroughly representative of the students. It is through this means that they are able to express their opinions of ideas in a tangible manner. In addition to editorials and interesting student items, it contains a full account of all the news events and activities which take place on the campus, social and club news, as well as a number of student jokes. The college alumnae also find a keen interest in the column set aside for alumnae news. The staff obtains excellent training in newspaper work, and a valuable business knowledge through the solicitation of advertisements from various establishments in the city. Its increasing mailing list assures The Collegian of its evident popularity outside as well as in the college.

"G" Club

Is it not an honor to be the possessor of a "G"? 'Tis a symbol of many weary miles of hiking, of many mornings of disturbed slumber and of many rough battles on the tennis and basketball courts, on the soccer field—but is it not worth all this? Underlying all these "hardships" we find loyalty, earnestness and good sportsmanship. "G" Club membership is based on points—a thing which is the goal of every person who is athletically inclined.

Basketball

LOUISI- TATE
Captain of Winning Team

Basketball is without doubt the most hotly-contested sport on the campus, for each class tries hard to outdo the other. The Freshmen come from high school, strong in their desire to overthrow the team who holds the cup. The "bloody Sophs" determine not to let the new comers outplay them. The Juniors are a determined bunch of players too. Some might say that the Seniors are too dignified to play basketball, but that is not always true. They still have the strong class spirit, and put up a good fight.

On November 7, 1929, the Freshmen and Seniors met for the preliminary game. The Seniors played a good game, but the result was a victory for the Freshmen. The Juniors forfeited their place to the Freshmen, so they played on Field Day. At 8:45, November 9, 1929, the Freshmen and Sophomores met beneath flying colors. It was a hard-fought game with a final score of 26-19 in favor of the Sophomorés.

Soccer

Although of recent appearance on our campus, soccer is rapidly gaining popularity as a major sport, and is justifying its existence by the large number of enthusiasts who are becoming more interested in the game from one Field Day to another. The swiftness of this sport requires not only skill and speed but endurance, and ability in "taking the ball down" is necessary to a good game.

The Sophs held the title of champions from last year, so in exciting preliminaries the entrant for Field Day was decided. The Seniors won the right to play, so on November 9, 1929, sister classes met on the field. The result was a surprise to many, for the seniors won with a score of 2-1.

Tennis

PRESTINE BLAKENEY
Champion

It is easy to see that much interest and hard work have been expended on tennis this year. Proof of this may be found in the hotly-contested game played Field Day, in which the Seniors, represented by Margaret Towe and Prestine Blakeney, and the Sophomores, represented by Ruth Davis and Marion Erwin, were participants. The Seniors were winners with a score of 7-5 and 6-3. Thus they became champions because the Juniors and Freshmen had been eliminated in preliminaries.

Much interest was also shown in the tennis singles contest. This was between Ruth Davis, Sophomore, and Prestine Blakeney, Senior. Blakeney won by the score of 6-4.

ANNE HINKLE Highest Scorer

The dash, relay, pole vault, broad and high jump, walking for speed, basketball throw, horseshoe pitching, archery, and bonario are all things which stimulate action. Great interest is aroused by watching the girls take part in each event. Much skill and competition was also shown. Anne Hinkle was first place winner in dash. Whisnant, Moores, Self, Lambeth also won. Louise Thompson won first place in broad jump. Gertrude Clay won first place in high jump. In horseshoe pitching the Freshmen were found making some good throws which brought them victory over the Sophomores, who showed marked ability. Elizabeth Cross won first place in basketball throw. Bernice Hooper won first place in pole vaulting. Archery and bonario are other new events. It is hard for us to get into these with the interest of the older events, but Fannie House Scoggin, who won first place in archery, and Annie John Williams, who won first place in bonario, proved them to be interesting sports.

To Our Sister Classes

Through the years, our Sister Classes have been linked together in an unbroken chain of golden friendship. We hold this tree sacred, which symbolizes our growing love for you and charge you to honor this noble heritage which is ours. May the same love, happiness and friendship which you have given to us be yours always.

MISS THELMA THOMPSON. Queen o' May

ELMORE. MOORE. GRIFFIN. THOMPSON (Queen). HOLMES. CHAMBLEE FLIPPIN, JOHNSON

May Day, 1929

A herald raised a shining bugle and blew a few clear, silvery notes and a silence fell over the gay assembly. The courtly groups of fair attendants whispered excitedly among themselves and the tall, handsome prince glanned eagerly through the trees for a glimpse of his lady, the Queen. At a distance was heard the clip of a horse's hoof upon a stone, then the crack of a driver's whip and the crunch of carriage wheels upon the gravel road. The Queen was coming!

Prancing slowly down the roadway, two purewhite horses were drawing a shining black coach. The driver, a tall, pleasant-faced "darky," neatly dressed in black and white livery, pulled in the reins as he approached the waiting court. The fair young Queen smiled graciously at the Prince, who took her hand as she stepped from the carriage. Followed by two tiny pages who held her lacy train, she walked slowly toward her throne. Suddenly an arch of fragrant crimson roses was flung over her head, a tribute of homage to the Queen of the May!

May Day Court

A soft May breeze whispering softly through the trees and the throaty trill of a bird's song were the only sounds that broke the stillness as the Queen took her place before the throne. Around her stood her Maid of Honor and ladies-in-waiting, tall and flower-like in their delicately-tinted dresses. When their beautiful Queen was seated before them the Court began its entertainment for her pleasure. Willowy girls in long, ruffled dresses tripped before her, each bearing an arch of snow-white roses, and began dancing, gracefully swaying to the rhythm of distant music.

A minuet with fans followed. Girls in crisp organdies of pale gold, orchid, soft pink, and green moved through slow steps, opening and shutting their fans with a motion as graceful as a butterfly fluttering its wings in the sunshine.

The Queen smiled delightedly as eleven little picaninnies, snickering bashfully, sauntered before her and began jigging in true Southern fashion. Their kinky little heads bobbed back and forth as they went through their steps. Then, abashed at the appliance of the audience, they rolled their eves comically, turned to their heds and fled, amid the laughter of the assembly.

The Virginia Reel was the next dance performed for her Majesty's pleasure. The gay courtiers with powdered wigs were attired in shimmering white satin and creamy lace collars, while their partners, the ladies, wore long, ruffled dresses. Skipping lightly through their steps and bowing low to each other, they brought the dance to a triumphant end.

The Victoria minuet which followed held the audience in fascination by its slow, dreamy rhythm. The intricate steps were performed with such ease by the handsome men and beautiful ladies that a burst of appliance greeted its close.

Then it was that the Queen rose, gracious and stately before her people, and made her awards. With her own hand she presented (all, silver cups for teams excelling above all others in athletic achievement and to favored individuals she gave letters and stars.

Then came the Maypole Dance, the crowning performance of the day. Two tall poles, gaily decked with bright flowers and streaming ribbons, were surrounded by girls who joyfully danced around each other, weaving a ribboned mat around the pole. At last, triumphant, they abandoned their sport and danced away.

(We recommend that this be sent to all Freshmen with the handbook and application for gym costume)

- A—Apples. a most unpalatable breakfast dish, generally served cold with bacon.
- B-Breakfast, the least enthusiastic organization on the campus.
- C—Cuts. Given for sickness, but used for sleeping.
- D—Dilemma. the rare condition of being caught slipping a book from the library.
- E—Education. That mental state supposedly attained by daily contact with classes.
- Failure, that grim specter that stalks the campus at exam time.
- G-Greensboro College Girls Don't-," the Freshman's rule of etiquette.
- H—Him, that mystical somebody that we all secretly long for
- 1—Infirmary, a cold white place, where pink pills, guaranteed to cure all ills, are obtained.
- J—Joy, a state of happiness to be entirely forgotten on entering college.
- K-Kitchenette, a place where the members of the council curl their hair.

- Library, the meeting place of the chewing gum experts.
- M-Money, the thing we write home for
- N—Nod. a form of amusement frequently employed to pass away time while in
- O-Optimism, the state of mind least often experienced by students.
- P—Pull, a sublime assurance that the teacher likes you.
- Q-Quizzes, always given by the faculty the day after the day before.
- R—Rush, a practice used by two opposing literary societies and denied by both.
- S-Sunday morning, the time spent in hopefully looking for rain
- T-Term papers, those 2.000-word bugbears due twice a year.
- U--Ugly, the way the girls look at Sun-day morning breakfast.
- V-Vacant, the state of one's mind when a teacher asks a question.
- W-"Werb." Dr. Lahser's pronunciation of
- X—A mathematical term of which little is known, but of which much has been written.
- Y-Yearning, a vague, uneasy feeling ex perienced by love-sick girls.
- 7—Zero, practically the only mark given by teachers. This mark entitles pupils to membership in a society to which almost all school girls belong

Can You Feature-

- Dr. Webb on time for his 8:30?
- Dr. Ayers eating unscraped bananas?
- Mrs. Alley at breakfast before the doors
 - Mr. Watson late?
 - Dr. Ginnings without a ready joke?
 - Miss Sample not making costumes?
 - Mr. Alexander not telephoning?
 - 100 per cent attendance at chapel?

Youth Will Be Served At Meyer's

Miss Mary Agnes Williams, voted "most fair of all the fair" at Greens-boro College, is registering her fashion-alertness by wearing one of the new frocks from Meyer's. In all matters of dress she finds Meyer's ready to serve her with apparel that is assuredly fashion-right and at the same time expressive of the charm and youth typical of the Greensboro College girl.

Millions More

Each year stop dosing duction of Vicks VapoRub. more COLDS

and more people have given up the old-fashioned way of "dosing" colds and turned to this modern external method. Today the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

The ever-growing demand for this modern method of treating colds is shown in the familiar Vick slogan. Made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly." later raised to "21 Million." these figures are again being changed as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

Yes, merely a bit of play-acting now. But, someday, like thousands of other girls, she'll be a real Madam Pilot in a home of her own.

Then she'll know the value of applied thrift, such as a Pilot Policy can provide.

When it comes time for you to be a Madam Pilot, in a home of your own, remember PILOT LIFE.

It Happens

HAT we are truly thankful for many things. Our task is over, and as we lay aside our pens, we have the satisfaction that we have tried to do our best. If you, critical reader, are pleased and this book has shown a tendency to carry you back to the memorable days at G. C., then we of the management are well pleased and thankful—as our purpose has been accomplished. If, however, this book has fallen short in your estimation, we are truly sorry, but we can only offer suggestions—that you either get in touch with some reliable old-paper dealer, or start a fire.

THE 1930 ECHO STAFF.

Acknowledgments

N the publication of this book we wish to acknowledge the kindness of Huntley-Stockton-Hill Co.. West End Hose Co., Nor Bud Hosiery Shop. Mangel's. Morrison-Neese Furniture Co.. Greensboro Drug Store, Vanstory Clothing Co., and of Mesdames S. B. Turrentine and W. B. Ross.

We wish to thank all those who have helped make this book possible, those in our college and out. And especially do we thank the Observer Printing House, Jahn and Ollier Engraving Co., and The Flynt Studios for their helpful suggestions and sympathetic coöperation.
